War in Air Steps Up in Indochina

U.S. Raids, A-A Fire Intensify

From Wire Dispatches SAIGON, Jan. 17.-North Vietnamese missile crews tried to down American warplanes three times yesterday and today in an upsurge of anti-aircraft activity, the U.S. Command announced. A spokesman said no American planes were damaged in the attacks while two sites were believed destroyed by U.S. planes. All the attacks took place near the Ban Karai mountain pass on the Laotian-North Vietnamese border. The pass, 45 miles northwest of the Demilitarized Zone, is a main entry point into Lacs of the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (WP). -Air Force Secretary Robert C. Seamans jr. says that he learned of the recent bombing offensive against North Vietnam while watching television

"I am not in the operational chain of command," Mr. Seamans explained in a weakend interview. 'I'm not euthorizing any bombing. My job is one of men and ma-

"Where the bombing occurs is really not my decision," Mr. Seamans said. "From Christmas to New Year's I was on vacation in New England. The first thing I knew about the December raids was when I heard it on the "Today show."

The Air Force says that only five men, three of them military officers, are in the regular operational chain of command that selects bombing targets in Indo-china: President Nixon; Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird; Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; Adm. John S. McCain, commander of Pacific forces, and Gen. Creighton Abrams, U.S. field commander in Vietnam

But there is evidence that more people have been in cn past de-cisions on the bombing. The Pentagon papers, for instance, showed wide government participation in the selection of bombing targets during the Johnson administration—especially if hitting them threatened to escalate the Vietnam war.

Intense Campaign

At a news conference Dec. 16, Mr. Seamans displayed c series of charts to show that the trend of the air war "is definitely downward." In five days of raids beginning Dec. 26, the Nixon administration unleashed 1,000 bombing sorties against North Vietnam, the most intensive since President Nixon took office. (A sortie is one plane flying one mission.)

A former Pentagon excutive of Mr. Seamans's rank, who declined to be identified, was asked about Mr. Seamans's statement that he had not been consulted about the raids. "If I were Seamans and that happened to me," he said, "I would be highly teed off. "Technically, they can say he is not in the chain. But the secretary who supplies the planes and men ought to have a say in what they're going to be used

"It would not have happened to Harold Brown (former secretary of the Air Force). It's another example of how tightly these things are held."

Critics of bombing, including George Ball, former under-secretary of state, have argued that the dynamics of U.S. air war strategy dictate steady escalation. That is, the more the United States bombs, the more Hanoi has to United States has to bomb to blow up Hanoi's defenses. Still Vital

Mr. Seamans contended that V.S. bombing was still a vital necessity for allied operations in Indochina, making these points during the interview in his Pen-

"stem the flow" of Hanoi's war goods down the Ho Chi Minh Trail to minimize the risks of withdrawing American troops from Vletnam.

• The Laotian government, whose forces are under attack in northern Laos, has "asked for all the support we can give them." Part of Hanol's grand strategy for Laos may be to draw as much U.S. air power as possible away from the Ho Chi Minh Trail and toward the less vital grounds of northern Leos. The U.S. Air Force campaign

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (UPI). The Supreme Court agreed to-day to rule for the first time in a school desegregation dispute involving a non-Southern city.

The court will hear arguments in the case from Denver later this term and then follow with a written decision.

The handling of integration in the city's school system has failed to satisfy either Negro parents who initiated legal action in 1969 or the local school board authori-

The case had come to the court once before but was not accepted for review

U.S. District Judge William E. Doyle of Denver has written four opinions in the complex case, which was before the Supreme Court about a year ago. At that time, the school board was attempting to block further changes until the high court decided a test case from Charlotte, N.C. The fustices refused to order a

The complainants divided their case in two parts. The first part attacked a school board action rescinding desegregation resolu-tions of an earlier board pertaining to northeast Denver schools. Judge Doyle found the board's action tended to perpetuate ra-cial segregation and that the rescinding was therefore unconstitutiona.

As to other schools in the system, the complaint alleged that the authorities deliberately created and maintained racial and ethnic segregation in a "core" area. Judge Doyle found the allegations not true but granted relief to 12 schools on the ground that they were offering minorities an education unequal to that of whites.

In other actions, the court: Heard arguments for the first time on whether the death penalty should be abolished as cruel and unusual punishment. The lives of 694 men and women awaiting execution in 34 states may depend on the court's decision, to be handed down before

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (NYT).-The name of Clark Clifford, former Secretary of Defense, was introduced yesterday into the growing controversy over a purported autobiography of Howard

In addition, the author who produced the manuscript has asserted that an associate also saw and talked with the reclusive Mr. Hughes.

Those developments in the dis-pute over the book, which will be published by the McGraw-Hill Book Co. on March 7, came in interviews with the author, Clifford Irving. He has been pressed to substantiate his assertion that he met with Mr. Hughes about 100 times and tape-recorded their discussions, which form the basis of the book.

The name of Mr. Clifford, now a Washington lawyer, emerged in a transcript of an interview with Mr. Irving last night on "60 Minutes," a Columbia Broadcasting System television program. The interviewer was Mike Wallace, who had been permitted to read the original typescripts of Hughes-Irving interviews.

As a preface to one question, Mr. Wallace said that Mr. Hughes had been quoted as saying that "bribery and favors are at the root of the American political system." Then he asked about a reported loan by Mr. Hughes to M. Donald Nixon, a brother of President Nixon, in 1956.

Mr. Irving answered that the loan had been for $205,000 and that 'Mr. Hughes was asked for the money."

Mr. Wallace asked who had requested the loan. Mr. Irving was not willing to supply the name, but Mr. Wallace, drawing on his reading of the manuscript, asked if it had been Clark

Nixon Tells Aides to Tighten Security and Prevent Leaks

WASHINGTON, Jan 17 (UPI). President Nixon has ordered a tightening of security within the dministration to prevent leaks of information similar to the publication of secret U.S. deliberations on the India-Pakistan war, the White House said today.

Press Secretary Ron Ziegler said that Mr. Nixon wanted to "make absolutely sure that in-formation on various segments of policy discussions does not flow from private meetings."

"We can't operate effectively when these things become public," Mr. Ziegler said. It was the first official White House reaction to columnist Jack Anderson's recent reports that Mr. Nixon ordered a "tilt" in U.S. policy in favor of Paki-stan during its two-week war with India in December. Mr. Anderson based his columns on documents reporting on discussions within the Washington Special Action Group (WASAG) headed by Henry A. ### Leftists' Bomb Kills 4 Police In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 17 (Reuters).—Police today combed the Argentine capital for left-wing urban guerrillas who left a bomb Friday which exploded and killed four policemen. The bomb had been placed at the home of a former minister.

The victims were explosive experts who caught the full force of the blast, which ripped open the front of the building, as they raced to defuse the plastic bomb Six other members of the squad and three passers-by were injured. But the guerrillas' intended victim, former Justice Minister Jaime Perriaux, who held the portfolio from July 1970 until the middle of 1971, was 1,800 miles away in the port of Ushuaia, Tierra del Fuego, the southern-most town in Argentina.

The self-styled Armed Liberation Forces said they sent the bomb because Mr. Perriaux was "the principal ideologist of re-pression, father of the death penalty, the federal chamber of terror and repressive legislation."

the region bordering the Persian Gulf, and that is its possession of 70 percent of the petroleum reserves in an energy-hungry world. This is, of course, an extremely important fact, and one that accounts for much of the complexity and dublety affecting other aspects of the Gulf.

There is, for example, the question of the price of that petroleum, as altered by the devaluation of the American dollar and the conflicting interests engaged in the current bargaining—not only as between producing and consuming countries but within those two groups. And those conflicts involve political and strategic interests as well.

The Shah of Iran, having demonstrated at considerable cost and with much fanfare the antiquity of his throne, has been asserting dominion over the Gulf in the wake of the departing British. He opposes any "foreign presence" in the Guif, with specific reference to the American agreement to base naval forces at Bahrein. The Shah has made some very telling points about the inability of the United States to act as "international gendarme," about the dilution of the role of the superpowers generally, and the need for recognizing the ability of local nations to assume their own responsibilities. In all of this, the shah would have strong backing in America. But the question remains: What local power can assure reason-

There is only one indisputable fact about able security of transit and production in the Gulf region? Iran is probably the best suited to the role—but neither Iraq nor a number of other Arab governments accept Iranian hegemony. In fact, tension between Iraq, at the head of the Gulf, and Iran has been increasing over that very issue.

As the shah emphasized, a grave danger to the Gulf, and to the petroleum traffic, is the possibility of guerrilla attacks from secret bases along the Gulf shores. To control this threat (which was emphasized by an incident not too long ago on the other side of the Arabian peninsula) regular naval forces controlled by a distant power are not likely to prove effective, and may even enhance the peril. But suppose there should be war between Iraq and Iran? The shah admits his country is not yet "a formidable military power," and even if one assumes that it is in the process or secoming one, Iran might still be challenged at this time, to the enormous disruption of a trade that is essential to the Persian Gulf countries and to those whom it supplies with oil.

Perhaps American ships in Bahrain cannot insure against such a disaster. Doubtless there are better ways of meeting the problem-international guarantees of some sort. The main point now is that Iran alone cannot now be counted on to keep open the sea lanes in the Persian Gulf and that of Oman. Such a task demands cooperation.

effort to ascertain whether a settlement reached in November between Britain and Rhodesia's white minority government is "acceptable to the people of Rhodesia as a whole." It will be a delicate, difficult task, the outcome of which will have considerable hearing on the chances for peaceful evolution of white-black relations in Southern Africa as well as on Britain's international standing.

The complexity of the task can be simply stated: The commission, in effect, is a substitute for the general referendum that would seem a logical instrument for determining Rhodesian opinion on the terms of the settlement, under which black majority rule would be technically possible at some distant date if the white government kept its commitments. Rhodesia's white rulers would never have agreed to a free vote on this issue in a country where blacks outnumber whites 20 to one, and neither the present Conservative British government nor its Labor predecessor insisted on a referendum.

A British commission has now begun its chairman, three deputy chairmen and 16 additional members are all white and all British. No effort was made to make the commission multiracial by appointing nonwhite members from Commonwealth countries. It was selected by a government that is a party to the agreement and working hard to "sell" it-in Britain, Rhodesia and around the world.

For its travels and contacts in Rhodesia. the commission will inevitably be heavily dependent on the other party to the agreement, Prime Minister Ian Smith's white minority regime. The tribal chiefs it will consult are on Smith's payroll. The two Airlean leaders with demonstrated mass support have been in detention for many years.

Yet Lord Pearce and his three deputy chairmen are eminent men of unquestioned integrity. They and their colleagues-mostly veterans of Britain's colonial and African service-may find ways to probe more deeply among Rhodesia's five million blacks than Smith intends or than the government that appointed them expected. ### International Opinion

Malta Issue

The crucial issue now is not so much the money but the terms on which the extra NATO money is to be given. Is Mintoff being asked to abandon his neutrality, and is he really likely to accept that? The talks could easily break down again on that point. It was hinted earlier that Mintoff was unwilling to let NATO use the harbor, but that he would allow the Warsaw Pact navies. which of course means the Russians.

The possible face-saver here could be an arrangement allowing for warships to call only for repairs. This is not against what NATO wants. Indeed Mintoff has been trying to get more repair work from several NATO countries already. On the other hand, it is unlikely that the Russians will be willing to let their warships use the harbor on that basis for reasons of security. Honor could be satisfied all round.

Pessimism on the Jarring Mission

Despite worldwide political shifts, in the 11 months since the initial failure of the Jarring mission there has been hardly any alteration in the perspectives of the Middle East conflict. Its ultimate subject matter continues to be not the drawing of boundaries but the existence of Israel. When the Israelis argue that Arab enmity dates from well before the 1967 Six-Day War and that thus even an unconditional withdrawal from the territories occupied in 1967 would be no means guarantee secure frontiers and peaceful coexistence, their argument is based on two decades of experience. The same experience has yielded Israel's widespread skepticism toward the UN, an attitude which was confirmed and reinforced by the role of the UN in the India-Pakistan war, when the world organization was again utterly powerless in the face of armed hostilities. The preconditions for a success of the Jarring mission have thus deteriorated further. At the moment there are no signs of a way out of the vicious circle in the Middle East. -From Neue Zuercher Zeitung (Zurich).

Getting Rhodesian Opinion

When the Rhodesian settlement terms were negotiated, they tended to be greeted with triumph by white Rhodesians, and with something approaching dismay by liberal opinion in this country. Yet within a very short time, the white Rhodesians have started to take a less confident view of the situation, largely as a result of the work of the Pearce commission. It is still not clear how Lord Pearce is going to explain to the mass of the Africans terms which are highly technical and not widely understood even in Britain, let alone how he hopes to judge whether they are acceptable to the people of Rhodesia as a whole.

-From the Financial Times (London). View From Cairo

The only dominating theme which is to be found in President Sadat's speech (last week) and in all recent pronouncements out of Cairo is exasperation with American policies. For over a year, so it appears in Cairo, the Americans have kept all the threads of negotiation in their own hands. And the Egyptians, to further the peace to which they have been committed since Nasser's death, have made many concessions, short only of the concession of territory. And from all this, the only positive outcome is that Israel gets, apparently without conditions, still more of the Phantoms whose destructive power Egyptians living in the delta know all too well. The view from Cairo is, of course, only one view of the crisis, but there can be no doubt that disenchantment there with America is complete and bitter and the demotion of Dr. Fawzi may be intended to draw pointed attention to it.

Life and Politics

By Anthony Lewis

LONDON.—Anyone who re-flects these days on the relationship of man and earth must eventually find himself operating at two levels of awareness. He worries about his house and his car, his income and his posdons in the usual way. He gets angry at politicians when the power fails and his air conditioner stops. He hopes his union will get that wage increase, or the company whose stock he owns will sell more of its new gad-

A coincidence of events la week showed how our political life deals with the unpleasant reality of environmental crisis in the same way, by operating in separate compartments.

In London, 33 distinguished scientists supported a "Blueprint for Survival" to avoid ecological catestrophe in our children's lifetimes, if not ours. Instead of industrialization and growth, it said, we must more "stable society" with limits on population and the use of resources. We must learn to think of everything we do in terms of effects on the environment.

In the same week it became known that the Stockholm Conference on the Environment. long planned for next June as the first great worldwide event of its kind, was in danger of foundering on a diplomatic issue. At the insistence of West Germany and its allies, East Germany was being excluded—and the Soviet bloc therefore threatening to stay away. And this exclusion despite the fact that East Germany is a major industrial power and is likely to be a UN member by the time of the conference.

Crisis Coming

"Diplomacy against biology," one scientist said. "It is absurd." He might better have said: politics against life.

Politicians are like the rest of us enlarged. They underestimate, or perhaps they hide from, the gravity of the ecological crisis and the speed with which it is coming. They tinker with this pollution or that, they pass a useful law, but they do not face the essential truth that a revolution of attitudes is needed. The Ecologist, a British magazine, published the "Blueprint for Survival." First it set out the reasons for urgency. For example, resources are running out under the pressures of exponential growth. Ecological demand will multiply by a factor of 32 over the next 66 years at present growth rates: Can anyone imagine the earth meeting such a requirement? Even if we stop population growth completely in developed countries in 30 years. and the rest of the world in 70. world population will stabilize at more than four times present numbers. One may argue over this figure or that, but it is impossible to resist the conclusion

Crisis in Yugoslavia—II

A 'Prague Psychosis' In Unhappy Zagreb

By Dan Morgan

ZAGREB.—The sun has broken vinced that separatist, and even through exactly once in this Crostian capital since mid-De-

Otherwise, fog and gray clouds have hung over the cathedrals, university buildings and Viennastyle coffee houses, perfectly fitting the somber political mood.

A melancholy "Prague psychosis" has taken hold after President Tito started a purge of leaders, who many Croats thought embodied their longing for a regime representing Crost un-

After December demonstrations, discipline in Zagreb has been rapidly restored through a wave of resignations, press attacks on "counter-revolutionaries," arrests, and plainclothesmen around university buildings. But somebody has scrawled "Hellas" (Greece) on a wall, and a young lawyer with a good job says he is considering emigrating.

Vantage Point

From this vantage point it is not easy to see how the Yugoslav ideal of voluntary union of diverse nations, always dependent on a satisfactory balance between Serbs and Croats, can be reconstructed.

The abject self-criticism by Mrs. Savka Dabcevic-Kucar, the party leader, and her protégés has only raised all the old Croat suspicions of persecution by the Serbs and the central government in Belgrade. It may take a long time for the scars to disappear A Croat himself, Tito was thought of here before December as the greatest patron of national rights.

More serious still is the setback in finding a formula for taking the emotion out of Serb-Croat

"The meaning of this," said a Belgrade professor, "is that we have failed to build a society." That point has begun to sink in at Belgrade, after an initial upsurge of gratitude at the demise of the Croat "nationalists."

"After all," said a journalist in the Yugoslav capital, "it is younger Serbs, not Tito, who are going to have to live with the Croats for the next 40 years."

Diverse Currents

Among the diverse corrents that had been flourishing under the now tattered banner of the Croat "Narodni Pokret" (national movement) were aspirations for democratization. During 1970 to 1971, when the movement gained steam, press freedoms increased, the party showed more openness to Catholics and non-Communists, and a reconciliation with nonextreme elements among Crosts abroad had begun.

uine hopes among Catholics and intellectuals for better opportunities, and university graduates cancelled plans to seek jobs abroad, sensing an economic modemization and upsurge at home.

leaders at Zagreb University called for a purification of the university of all but those who were spiritually Crost—which implicitly suggested that more than 100 Serb and Jewish faculty members should be expelled.

Mrs. Debcevic-Kucar's party leadership appeared unable to calm these voices even after much had been done to right these old imbalances.

Not Fast Enough

Tito himself had become the champion of economic decentralization, and had largely accepted the sharp attack on centralism that was launched by Mrs. Dab. cevic-Kucar and her associates at the 10th plenum of the Cross party in January, 1970. Constitutional amendments pushed through by Tito this summer gave much more economic powers to regional capitals.

However, the power was not being shifted fast enough for the

The core of the militant student leadership at Zagreb University whose strike in November and December apparently pushed Tito beyond the brink came from the "Yugoslav Appalachia." This is the mountainous, underdeveloped region of Croatia and Herzego vins, inhabited by unemployed men, and pessants and mountaineers embittered by lack of social security pensions. It is also an area where primitive ethnic hatreds abound.

However, the appearance at the December demonstrations of members of the Zagreb "new left" (who were ousted by the student nationalist wing at the university last April) suggested that the protests had a wide spectrum of support.

Before Tito's action in December, one Croat intellectual said: "As long as the old man is around, nothing will change very much. But after that, things will change very rapidly.

"It is possible to imagine the idea of a Croatia within a federal Yugoslavia, but in practice it is more difficult What is to be

Thus, the Croatian party found itself forced to compromise on orthodox Marxism by espousing the national movement. This was unacceptable to some members of the Croat party, who gut Yugoslav unity above all else. But except for the expulsion of two university lecturers from the ty last July (both of are now under arrest), Mrs. Dabcevic-Kucar's leadership refused to use the "iron broom."

Today, however, it is Tito who is wielding an iron broom, as he promised in December, against Mrs. Dabcevic-Kucar and her liberal protégés.

Sweeping Out

In sweeping out Mrs. Dabcevic-Kucar and the youthful people's tribune, Mika Tripalo, the Belgrade regime has cracked down on both the good and bad cur-rents that their movement had spawned.

It has also raised the question whether the Titoist policy of allowing a little bit of nationalism as a vent, inside a loosely knit Yugoslav federation, can be carried through.

This policy has been bound up closely with the democratization of Yugoslavia since 1952, with the establishment of workers' control over the factories. with the economic reforms, with decentralization of the economy, and with the 1966 ouster of Serb centralist

Aleksandar Rankovic (in which the Crost leadership cooperated). In short, most of the unique qualities of the Yugoslay Com-munist experiment, on which Tito's own tremendous prestige and reputation rest, seem less secure than they did before the December coup against the Crosts. The International Revold

Dr. Philip E. Mosely NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (WP) .-Dr. Philip E. Mosely, 56, who was responsible for the planning of post-World War II settlements and who was one of the country's leading experts on the Soviet Union, has died at his home here. A founder and former director of the Russian Institute at Columbia University, Dr. Mosely spent most of his career as an academician, frequently doing historical, political and social research in Russia. At the time of his death Thursday, he was director of the European Institute at Columbia, Adlai Stevenson professor of interna-tional relations at Columbia and associate dean of the faculty of international affairs in charge of

After receiving undergraduate and doctoral degrees from Harvard, Dr. Mosely did research in Moscow and in the Balkans and taught at Union College and Princeton and Cornell Universities before starting his service with the State Department in 1942.

He served as an adviser to Secretary of State Cordell Hull at the Moscow Conference in 1943 and as a member of the U.S. delegation to the European Advisory Commission in London and the Potsdam Conference in the next two years.

As an adviser to Secretary of State James P. Byrnes, he took part in the Council of Poreign Ministers meetings in London and in Paris in 1945 and 1946 and was also the U.S. representative on the commission for the investigation of the Yugoshy-Italian boundary in 1946.

U.K. Blowing Up Chemical Drums Floating Ashore

PENZANCE, England, Jan. 17 (PEI).—Royal Navy bomb disposal squads today began blowing up 100 drums containing toxic chem-icals that floated ashore in Corn-wall, in southern England.

Residents in the area said substances leaking from some of the drums caused them ill-effects. "Everyone who went near it complained that it caused their tongue to dry up and feel as if it was swelling. Their skin developed a prickly itchy sensation and their eyes started to water," said Michael Eustis. The Union Carbide Company in Belgium told the British government the drums were from the Spanish ship Germania that sank near the Channel Islands Dec. 21. The company had a consignment of over 200 barrels of chemicals on the ship, and some of them were "extremely dangerous," a company spokesman said.

In London, the Department of Trade and Industry said the vessel carried 867 drums of chemicals, including ethyl acetate, an inflammable solvent which gives off poisonous fumes

'Female Therapists' to Help Male Impotence Are Disputed

seemed more than a question of semantics. The doctor said the women volunteers were "female thera-pists" assisting in a medical experiment to help cure male impotency.

The member of Parliament said the experiment looked more like "a brothel run on quasi sociomedical lines" and called for a government investigation.

At issue was a remark by Dr. Martin Cole in an interview last week that his Institute for Sex Education and Research in Birmingham used women therapists to help solve male sex problems. "We are trying to relieve their distress," Dr. Cole said. "The only realistic way to help these people is to provide surrogate partners, or female therapists as we call them.

"In this way one continues the treatment beyond the confines of the consulting room."

Dr. Cole, whose film "Growing Up" caused a national controversy last spring because it showed a young woman teacher masturbating, said 10 women volunteers assisted at his clinic. He said none were prostitutes

Total Logic Mobility Made Easy, Or, a Guide to Technological Talk

LONDON, Jan. 17 (AP).-Enfield College in London is offering a guide in how to talk technology and sound as if you know what it means.

The guide for students was devised by the college's industrial lisison center to spoof the language of the technocrats across the corridor in the computer department. The center's chief. Bill Favager, and two collaborators said that their "verbal one-upmanship guide" consists of 30 key nouns and adjectives that can be arranged in various combinations. The words, in three sections, are:

 A—Integrated, total, systemized, parallel, functional, • A—Integrated, total, systemized, parallel, lunctional, responsive, optical, synchronized, compatible, balanced;
• B—Management, organization, monitored, reciprocal, digital logic, transitional, incremental, third generation, policy;
• C—Options, flexibility, capability, mobility, programming, concept, time-phrases, projection hardware, contingency.

Mr. Favager said: Take any word from the first section. combine it with any word in the second column then add any word in the third column. Few listeners will admit ignorance of the impressive sounding result."

When a technocrat uses a phrase like "systemized reciprocal mobility," Mr. Pavager said, "even the most technologically un-instructed layman can riposte with something like 'integrated incremental time-phrases.'

"the movie makes her an emotionally precoclous 16, played by an actress of 24 (Georgina Hale) with a kind of mature intensity that argues for at least 30 years' experience on the stage." No wonder there is "so much fire" between them-"from their big seduction scene near the end to their incredibly portentous meeting near the beginning," Greenspun comments, with his favorite line in the movie: Napoleon's "Have a bonbon." ### Routine Is Not Enough

By William Weaver

POME (IRT)—Is there a movement afoot to restore Pucchi's long-neglected "La Rondine" to the repertory? It seems likely. A lew years ago RCA made a complete recording of the work. Then, in 1968, it was revived in Trieste. This past fall it was given in Ireland, at the Wexford Festival, and the Trieste production has traveled to Bologna, and this week—to Rome. If all this does prove to be a concerted effort, its aim is a worthy one. "La Rondine," though not absolutely first-class Puccini, is still a piece with considerable charm and grace, and a cosple of hit numbers (Megda's first aria, for example, and the big ensemble in the second act).

But performances like the one currently being offered in Rome are not likely to give this little opera a new, long-term lease on life.

Great works can be carelessly mounted and still prove effective; own the most slovenly "Traviata" or "Bohème" can squeak by. But imperfect operas require far more attention and pains. A production that is not well thought-out reveals all the weaknesses. And so Rome's "Randine" seemed to underline the curt shift in tone from Act I to Act II and the curious simlessness, not to say idiocy, of the opera's ending (the boy, when he finds out the girl has a "past," got home to mother with hardly a moment's hesitation). A good performance, of course, cannot erase the opera's flaws, but it can make them forgivelye.

them torgivable. First of all. "Le Rondine" demands a protagonist with great, winning appeal. Edith Martelli just managed to sing the notes, not always beautifully: her tenor, Ruggero Bondino, was even less in the next relline his ton notes and helders them. part, yelling his top notes, and holding them long enough to allow them to go flat. Then there is the second, comic pair of lowers. The maid, Lisette, should be pert, a soubrette; Cecilia Fusco was got up like Sophie Tucker, mined constantly and inappropriately, and did not sing well. Neither did her poet-protector, the tenor Angelo Mar-chiandi. The uninspired staging by the television actor-turned-director, Racul Grassilli, was a detriment to all. Lovro von Matacic conducted. At the beginning, he seemed about to whip up a Lehar-like verve; but then he lost momentum fast The second act moved listlessly; the third act threatened to come w a dead stop at times. Agam, this opera cannot survive a routine even a clean and precise—reading. It needs an inspired touch.

Reviews were brutal, and attendance has been poor. Is "Is Rondine" headed back for the shelf? Its admirers—and this review is one can only hope not; but prospects are discouraging

Sterling held center stage in the heatic exchange markets, taking some extraordinary large price leaps in terms of the dollar. At one stage the pound momen-tarily touched $2.60 and then took more erratic price swings, putting the dollar to its lowest point since the pound's devalua-

SALES REPRESENTATIVES WANTED IN

PITTSBURGE, Jan. 17 (AP-DJ) —A tangled web of interlocking ownership, directorships and debt underlies Oxford Electric Corp.'s proposal to sell the bulk of its operations to Interphoto

On its face, the proposal looks simple enough. Oxford would sell to Interphoto four subsidiaries and some assets of a fifth for $8.1 million in Interphoto debentures, plus warrants and an undetermined amount of cash.

A closer look at a 126-page "There is just not enough confidence in the dollar to keep it-from falling," one source said. Last month's accord, he predicted, proxy statement jointly issued by the two firms, however, discloses some startling facts:

Oxford plans to use a substantial part of the proceeds of the sale to help finance repay-ment of an Italian subsidiary's debt to a Milan bank, controlled by the individual who is, indirectly, the principal shareholder in both Oxford and Interphoto. Oxford's total debt is so large and its cash supply so short the company's management says the transaction is "critically necessary" if it is to meet its fi-nancial obligations.

• The Oxford operations which will remain after the transaction have not been profitable as a whole in recent years, but Oxford expects interest income from the debentures to exceed anticipated continuing losses.

• Interphoto will also double its current Habilitles and longterm debt-to $43.1 million from $21.7 million—and, according to a report contained in the proxy statement, currently is seeking to expand its short-term bank credit $35 million from $22 million obtained last August.

[The American Stock Exchange said today that it has asked Oxford to clarify several points concerning its proxy statement, Reuters reported. Both Oxford and Interphoto stock have been delayed from trading all day, pending receipt of the information. Spokesmen for Interphoto and Argus, also delayed, said they have not been contacted by the exchange as yet.]

The central figure in the intertwined affairs is a Milan investor named Michele Sindona, a banker and financier regarded by some as one of the richest men in The proxy statement shows that Mr. Sindona holds a 19.7 percent interest in Oxford, a diversified, Pittsburgh - based company, through a personal holding company in Liechtenstein called Fasco. Through it and a Swiss bank under his control, Mr. Sindona also owns 14.9 percent of Argus Inc. of Michigan, a photography products concern that has In the 1966-67 recession in West held a 51.6 percent interest in Interphoto since late 1970. Despite the money put into Uranya by Oxford and increasing loans to the company from Mr. Sindona's bank-which mounted from $4.1 million outstanding Jan. I. 1970, to $7 million last June 30 —Uranya's balance sheet, as of last June 30, showed its cur-rent liabilities of $3.1 million exceeded its total assets, which were $7.2 million.

The proxy material apparently does not state explicity, at any point, whether Oxford has guaranteed the $7 million in Uranya loans due Mr. Sindona's bank; at any rate, Oxford's counsel, when asked to point out such a state-ment, has not done so.

The proxy material also refers prominently to certain loans that Oxford would "almost certainly" have to repay if it liquidated Uranya, and to certain other loans that would be in default if it failed to pay this first set of loans. Renavment of these loans is practically impossible at this time, it added. There is no apparent explanation, though, of just what loans these are and in exactly what form such a chain of events would occur.

Mr. Porco, Oxford chairman, also is president and principal shareholder in Amerofina Inc., an investment banking firm that officially represents Mr. Sindons in U.S. dealings. He says that Mr. Sindona "wasn't involved in the determination" of the transaction. It was pretty much all American ideas," he adds.

He also says the transaction was not designed to repay the Uranya loans due Mr. Sindona's bank. Interphoto, he says, "is looking for products," and Oxford's "got financial problems— that's what makes a deal." He adds: "You have to pay your debts. I don't see why it makes any difference whose bank it is."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP-DJ).—With the U.S. 1971 economy left looking much limper by a major statistical revision, the Nixon administration faces urgent decisions on policy for 1972,

Catching the President's budget and economic messages in their final phases of preparation, the Commerce Department set off an embarrassing statistical bombshell last week by conceding that the gross national product (GNP) erew at worrisomely weaker rates in the second and quarters than third previously been announced.

Assuming that the weaker GNP figures are more realistic than the old versions, officials will have to brace for a bigger budget deficit than the $26 billion to $28 billion they had been expecting for the fiscal year ending next June 30.

A "significant" increase in the deficit is expected, one insider says, and a clue comes in a Commerce Department calcula tion on the somewhat different "national income accounts" basis -the new version for the September quarter is red ink at a $27.7 billion annual rate, against the previous version of $21.2 bil-

ing toward recession. There is lively criticism of the The most striking aspect of Bonn government for permitting the GNP revision, analysts say, is in the "real," or physical, coal imports of nearly 10 million tons a year under current con-tracts while the Ruhrkohle comvolume, which measures total output of private and governmenbine is not able to sell its coal tal goods and services. percent annual rate of real

May Fuel U.S. Budget Woes GNP increase for last year's first quarter (a rebound from the late-1970 General Motors strike) remains intact. But the real GNP annual rate of gain for the second quarter was slashed from a healthy 4.8 to a sickly 3.4 per-cent and that for the third quarter was cut from an unsatisfactory 3.9 to a wobbly 2.7

> This is worrisome, economists Ιt leaves the latest known rate of real GNP advance markedly below the 4 percent rate that is regarded necessary just to keep the unemployment rate from worsening; it makes it likely that the fourth-quarter gain will prove to be closer to 5 percent than to the 6 or even 7 percent recently forecast; and it casts doubt on whether gains in productivity, or output per manour, actually have started on the strong uptrend deemed vital to big output gains this year.

Prices Gain On Wall St., Dow Up 4.4

Dealers Say Market Resists Profit-Taking

By Vartanig G. Vartan NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (NYT),-The New York Stock Exchange got off to a slow start today, but prices rallied in the final hour to close at their best level of the

In some ways, it was a repeat of Friday's performance s late rally and higher prices for such groups as the airlines and golds and for selected glamour issues. The Dow Jones industrial average, behind by less than a point at noon, closed with a grin of 4.44 at 911.12. The tape ran two minutes late at the final bell as fresh buying and some short cov-ering in the glamour issues outweighed profit-taking pressures.

Airlines accounted for five of the 15 most actively traded issues and all five gained altitude. Trans World Airlines, posting a 1971-72 high, rose 2 3 4 to 48 1 4 after Friday's upswing of 2 1'4. Other airline gainers on the active roster were Eastern Air Lines, up 1 1/8 to 24 3/4; American Airlines, up 1 1/8 to 42 1/8; Braniff, up 1 4 to 16, and Pan American World

Airways, up 3/8 to 16 1.2, Favorable Reports

Fueling the takeoff in airline stocks—a group that shows sharp price swings in recent years—has been a wide assortment of buy recommendations and favorable readings in analyst polls. In essence, these recommendations maintain that the combination of cost-cutting in 1971 and the traffic gains predicted for 1973 will result in a sharp increase on the TWA, which sold last year as low as 13 3/8, was singled out for favorable comments today in an analyst roundup conducted by Barron's. And a survey of security analysts conducted by another publication, Investment Dealers' Digest, picked airlines as the favorite group for market action in the first months of 1972, Stocks of building-material concerns and insurance companies ran in the No. 2 and No. 3 spots, respectively. Gold-mining issues hit pay dirt as bullion prices in London rose to their highest quotations in nearly four years. American-South African and Dome Mines each rose 1 1/8. Homestake

Mining and Campbell Red Lake Stocks on the American Exchange ended the session higher. The exchange index closed at 26.66, up .13. Advancing issues led declines 606 to 375. Volume rose to 5.96 million shares from 5.38 million Friday.

The bond market closed at about its low of the day, with corporates off 1/2 point and government intermediates 2/32 to 10/32 lower. Some selling anpeared, but there was little retail or professional interest to absorb the price declines, dealers said.

Seagram's V.O. Canadian:

It isn't Scotch. It's something different, V.O. Canadian. Just a little bit smoother. And a touch lighter. Could you like V.O. even better .than the whisky you've come to know and love? You'll never know unless you try it.

IS AS SIMPLE AS

As an international land research and investment advisory and consulting organization, PBL is making money for its clients all over the world. And these clients have, through the years, come to realize the basic fact that, coupled with security, there can be few investments in the world to match the profitability of predeveloped land in California, U.S.A. It's the ideal inflationary hedge, too.

As our international investors can testify, being a PBL client is simplicity itself. PBL's full-time professional staff will research, negotiate on, monitor, and resell for you key parcels of predeveloped California land. This land will be malched to your individual investment needs and held for resale to builders and developers at the precise time of highest price for you to realize maximum profit. Thus you turn your investment into a substantial profit

Apart from the satisfaction of having made a sound and rewarding investment, you will like the complete anonymity of your numbered account (optional) plus the expertise of our investment counselors, who will meet you any place, any time.

When you read about the thoroughness of our services to the international investment community, you will easily understand why no client has ever lost money on a PBL-guided investment! (This offer is open to American citizens and to other Nationals with legal access to American currency.)

I am interested in making my money grow "as simple as PBL." Please send me literature on your services in locat- ing and managing predeveloped California, U.S.A., land.	4

BRIDGE

By Alan Truscott

The life of an expert is sometimes wrongly conceived as one long round of imaginative bids and spectacular plays. The truth is that the expert gets results by bidding accurately, playing carefully and taking full advantage of his opponents' errors.

One of the rare cases of brilliancy in the recent Fall National Championships at Phoenix Ariz occurred on the diagramed deal The hero was Alvin Roth of New York, who held the West cards.

South opened three clubs and was raised to game after an overcall of three diamonds. He ruffed the opening diamond lead, cashed the club king and led a division, in which case the last spade in dummy would eventually provide a discard for the potential heart loser. But there was an extra possibility, based on the possibility that the defenders' spades might be blocked.

Consider what could have developed if West had made the routine play of the spade jack at the third trick. South would then have been in a position to make his game.

The third trick could have been won with the spade ace, and three rounds of hearts played. The defenders could have arranged to win this in either hand. but in any event a ruff-and-sluff situation would have developed, either at once or after taking the spade king.

But Roth foresaw this long-term danger and alertly played his spade king. There was a good chance that his partner held the spade queen, and if South held that card there was no hope for the defense.

South did the best he could by winning in the dummy, ruffing a diamond and re-entering dummy with a club lead to the ace. Next he led a low spads from dummy, and East rose to the occasion in his turn. He resisted the temptation to play his queen, which would have squandered his partner's jack and permitted South to develop dummy's nine as a trick. Instead he played low, allowing his partner to win, and a shift to hearts resulted in the defeat of the contract.

COLERIDGE, THE DAMAGED ARCHANGEI

By Norman Fruman, Braziller. 607 pp. $12.56.

Reviewed by Thomas Lask

NORMAN FRUMAN has written a book that is relentlessly and devastatingly polemical and one of the most exciting I have read in years. It's one of those books that changes the configurations in the literary heavens, so that the starry arrangements don't appear quite as they did before.

No book I think will do more to indicate the dimensions of the "problem of Coleridge" than Fruman's. In the process he will make every reader rethink his conclusions as to the nature and meaning of the romantic movement, the nationalism of literature, the trustworthiness of literary evidence, the relation of language to the ideas and sensibility of an age. It will add a few more notes to the unending discussion of creativity and the unconscious.

Coleridge seems to me the ideal subject for these investigations, because of all the figures of the romantic movement he is one the nonscholar finds most difficult to measure for himself. The great reputation he has as the foremost literary critic in English, as the commentator on Shakespeare, as the brilliant conversationalist, as a superior metaphysician and thinker, has to be accepted mostly on the assurances of others. Only the poetry is exempt.

I recall my own disappointment with what appeared to me the scrappiness of the Shakespeare criticism in comparison, say, to A. C. Bradley on the great tragedies. Even after more than a century, the record is far from complete. Not all the documents are in, but many of the judgments are. Fruman, who teaches at California State College, has made them stand up for scrutiny.

Narrowly speaking, "The Damaged Archangel" is not so much a study of the poet's writings as his character and cast of mind. But since his works reveal the man in ways he could scarcely have imagined, his writings become the stuff of the author's searches. He starts out harmlessly enough by pointing out that Coleridge was not above using the poetry of others (Wordsworth's for example) as his own, This was done under the pressure of journalistic deadlines and may have been excusable. But the author goes on to demonstrate that this pattern of unacknowledged borrowings was not a stray

Victorious Frazier Indicates Foreman Is Next Title Foe

By Dave Anderson NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 17 (NYT).

Garden promoters hoped to arrange a title bout between the two unbeaten heavyweights— Frazier in 28 bouts with 24 knockouts, Foreman in 32 with 29 knockouts.

"I'm ready for the fight with te better business," Foreman "We have to check with the Better Business Bureau."
With his typically savage style. Frazier appeared physically sound, although slightly heavy at 215 1/2 pounds. He floored Daniels five times, including the final knockdown without a count when referee Herman Dutriex stopped the bout after 1 minute, seconds of the fourth round.

Prazier's attitude was a contrast to Ali's gentle late-round knockouts of Jimmy Ellis and Buster Mathis last year.

"I don't think Clay was merciful, I just don't think he can do any better now," the champion said. "I believe to finish it off. I don't get enjoyment takin' a man apart but that's the name of the game-stop the man. If I get clipped, my title's down the drain. I can't risk that. When you're facing a man with a gun.

Frazier, who rated himself 90 percent of his best, also criticized Ali's boast as the victor in their famous 15-round showdown last March 8 at the Garden. Daniels, 191 1/2, an obscure

IOC to Rule on Status of 11 U.S. Track Stars

By Neil Amdur NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (NYT).

A professional track and field tour that never left the starting blocks has threatened the Olympic eligibility of 11 United States athletes, including such gold-medal prospects as Lee Evans, Jay Silvester, Norman Tate, George Woods and Days

Disqualification of the athletes from participating at Munich would deal a severe blow to U.S. hopes of preserving Olympic supremacy in track and field. On broader scale, the athletes status may lead to stronger, more definitive guidelines on the question of what constitutes an amateur and the role of amateurism in future Olympic athletes were "misled" into thinking that rules set up by the AAU and the International Amateur Athletic Federation, which governs international track and field, superseded Olympic rules. "This is not the case," Lentz said. "The mere signing of a contract is a deed that doesn't depend on payment of consideration. Olympic rules have their own guidelines."

Three athletes have sent letters to the UBOC asking for a clarification of their amateur status and disavowing any previous intent to become a pro, the act that would cost them Olympic eligibility. They are Evans, the Olympic 400-meter champion; Tate, National Indoor long jump and triple jump titlist, and Daryl

Horn, another long jumper. Dick Dunham, another USOC

THREE'S NO CROWD—Dolphins' Garo Yepremian kicks

Presumably it was the latter which the Machiavelli of Pennsvlvania Avenue had in mind. The Dolphins never did make it work with Warfield. That incomplete pass for Miami's eighth play was on the short slant pattern from Warfield's usual position far out on the left flank. The next time Griese threw his way, Warfield had started downfield and veered out toward the sideline. That pass was too high also, which was just as well politically. Herb Klein, of the White House staff, observed in a speech in Hot Springs, Ark, that no politician sensitive to economic issues would ever call a down-and-out.

Another Blant Warfield went back to the short slant toward the middle, and for the third time the pass was too high for him. Not until his fourth attempt did he catch the ball, and that was out in the flat zone for a 5-yard gain. Late in the second quarter Warfield lined up in slot left formation (five yards inside the wide receiver). He raced downfield, threw in a little sidestep, and clutched a pass on the Dallas 24. The gain put the Dolphins in position for their only score, on nomic indicators" this year. An economic indicator is a clue to what is really happening to the economy. From these hints, economists can make fantastic predictions of which way the country will tilt in the next 12 months. A man who works with nothing but economic indicators is Dr.

Friedrich Strasser, who is in charge of the "Input-Output Institute of Senguous Economics." A visit to Dr. Strasser's institute produced some very interesting but frightening informa-

Dr. Strasser said that at the moment all his economic indicators were pointing up.

"More people are starting to travel on the airlines, which is a very good sign," he told me. "At noment though, it's still possible to book a flight without difficulty and have a comfortable ride without people sitting on your lap. But if things keep getting better, the airports won't be able to handle the traffic, the planes will be over-booked, luggage will be lost, and the airlines will have a very good economic

"Walt a minute," I said. "Are you trying to say that if the economy gets better in this country. things will get worse?"

"Of course I am. Everyone knows the price of a good economy is a breakdown in services that the economy provides. The more refrigerators people buy, the less chance they have of getting them repaired. The more cars that are sold, the bigger pollution and traffic problems you have. The more the country consumes, the less opportunity there is of getting rid of the garbage."

Dr. Strasser said one of his best economic indicators is the behavfor of shop clerks, hotel reservation people and headwaiters. "The nicer they are," he said,

"the more trouble the country is in. During the recent recession we found shop clerks, hotel people and headwaiters the most courte-

This shows that things are picking up, and the country could be in for a good year.'

"It's fantastic how you people arrive at your conclusions," I

"It's foolproof," Dr. Strasser said. "Let's take the building industry as an example. When the country is doing badly, no one is digging up the streets or drilling steel pilings into the ground, or making cement at six o'clock in the morning. People can get around easier, sleep better and work in a quieter atmosphere.

"But as soon as the economy improves, the wreckers come out to smash down buildings, streets are barricaded by cranes, water and gas are turned off, and the noise drives everyone to the point of suicide. By just checking the nervous breakdown figures in a city for the week we can gauge how well the building industry is

"So the more anxious the comtry becomes, the better it is for all of us?"

"Exactly. The best economic indicators are the sales charts of the anti-acid stomach medicine companies. When sales of Alka-Seltzer, Bromo Seltzer, Pepto-Bismol and Rollaids are down. this means people are content and the dollar is in trouble. But when anti-acid sales are up, this means people are sick and getting their faith back in the country. You can't have economic growth without ulcer growth at the same

"Then you're predicting a good economic year and a miserable existence for all of us?" I asked. "Life won't be as bad as it was in the late sixtles when things were booming, but I predict it will be a good enough year that people will be able to feel how miserable a healthy economy can

Pearl Buck's Views of China, U.S.

By Mike Shanahan

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—On a March morning in 1927, Pearl Buck lay huddled inside a servant's mud but in Nanking, during one of China's periodic upheavals.

Other Americans living there died at the hands of Com-munist revolutionaries in the shooting that followed. Miss Buck daughter of an American miszionary, narrowly escaped. Her life was saved by peasants whom she had come to admire during half a lifetime in

A Nobel Prize, scores of books and 40 years in the United States later, Miss Buck, 79, recalls the peasants and spec-ulates on the future of China. "I have strong feelings for the peasants," she said. "After all, I grew up with them." With signs that there is new upheaval under way in China, Miss Buck said that the Chinese masses are ready for a different sort of leadership than that provided by Mao

Expectations

There will be a dictator or possibly the start of a new empire, though not in one genera-tion," she said. "But I look for a return of an empire, perhaps modified."

Meanwhile, she said, what-ever is going on inside China came earlier than she anticipated. "I had expected an upset in China, but it's happening earlier than I thought," Miss Buck said. "It's with the military, what I call the young generals, I have long expected that when Mao begins to fall, and he is, the young generals will fight each other."

Miss Buck said she anticipates the emergence of a strong Chins, though one which may throw off any pretense of following Communist ideology once Mao is gone. But whatever the shape of the new leadership structure in Peking, Miss Buck said, a Chi-

Viewing China and the United States, she said: "There's a generation gap between nations just as between persons. We're a young people, and we don't have the maturity to recognize the futility of war. China long ago ceased to believe in agsion: We are just beginning to understand this. It's a mature point of view."

Cultural Center

Miss Buck is a native of West Virginia, where a cultural center is under construction in her name. She spends about a week every two months at the Pearl S. Buck Foundation in Philadelphia, a three-story townhouse on Rittenhouse Square, It is furnished with carved Chinese furniture and Asian pieces of art she brought to the United States long ago. Miss Buck speaks steadily and clearly about things both Chinese and American She is pleased that President Nixon is going to China but believes the journey will be a big political risk. "It's important politicallyeverything depends on how he is received," she said. "He was not invited as far as we know; it's possible that he received word that such a visit would be welcome, but I think not.

"I think it was his own dramatic idea," she said. "It was a shock, very American and very direct." By apparently requesting the visit himself. she said, Mr. Nixon "put us in a subordinate position from an Asian point of view. It's a tenuous position."

With chair backed up against the desk on which she wrote tinues, she said, and there are

Recently, she purchased a house in Danby, Vt., where she does all her writing. Her methods have remained stant. "I think about my books for years before I write-no notes, just think about them in my head."

Pearl Buck's day begins at 4 a.m. "One of the compensa-tions of nature is that as one's time grows shorter, one ne waste as much of it in sleep, she said, "Five hours is enough for me."

Danby

She writes or reads until breakfast at 8 or 9, then works again until noon. Later in the day comes a walk through tree-shaded streets in Danby, an hour each day. Dinner, "an event" with the staff, is followed by her retiring at 8.

Miss Buck said she moved to Danby because it was a dying small town, With four foundation staff members and some personal funds, she decided a few years ago to pump new life into the village by encouraging tourism, new antique shops and the importation of Asian gift items for sale locally. It is an admittedly commercial venture which she said is motivated by a belief that in America, and elsewhere, the key to great civilizations lies far from the cities.

The Fundamentals Of Lightning Rods

The Calvinist faction of the Kesteren, the Netherlands, city council has voted down a proposal from the mayor to put up a lightning rod on top of the new fire station. "We are opposed to all kinds of protection in principle." a faction spokesman said. "A lightning conductor is challenging the sovereignty of God."

"Some people think I'm mad." declared amateur violinist Joseph Pilbury of London who's forking out £1.200 to hire the Royal-Philharmonic Orchestra. The 40year-old financial consultant has always wanted to conduct the orchestra. When he inherited some money recently his wife persuaded him to blow it on one concert. The date: Feb. 6. The place: Round House theater. . . .

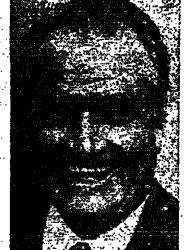

Fourteen snowmobiles will take off, if that's the word, from Willow River, Minn., on Jan. 31 for a trip to Moscow and back. Bill Cooper, a tavern owner, says the 7-member team will travel through Canada, across to Green-land, and by boat to Norway before heading for the Russian capital. No explanation, however, about how they'll make it across the Baltic. The Soviet Union has granted visas to the team to travel as far as Moscow. Permission denied, however, to return via Siberia.

NAMED: Wimbledon tennis champion Evenne Goolagong, 20, "Australian of the Year" Monday, ASTONISHED; a pretty blonde German tourist who parked her car on a building site in Basil and returned to find it sitting atop an eight-story building Workmen said they had hoisted it up by crane to save her a parking fine. CHRISTENED: Justin Pierre James Trudeau, 22 days old, Sunday in Notre Dame Basilica, Ottawa, son of Prime Minister and Mrs. Pierre Trudeau. QUITTING NIGHTCLUBS: Comedian Red Skelton, 60, who says he's going to slow down. He'll stick to TV and movies.

The latest sally in the anticigarette campaign came from U.S. Surgeon General Jesse L. Steinfeld who told a women's group in Washington that women who smoke develop wrinkles more readily—and at any earlier age than women who don't.

of the rusty spear. An agent for the British chemical firm of Smith Adams Separators discovered it for them with a liquid called Coatolan 3X, intended for protecting cars against rust. The news came to light when a puzzled company official in England queried how his man in the Amazon had managed to sell 45 gallons of the stuff to natives, most of whom had never seen a car. Dipping their weapons in the magic liquid, he said, was proving a better antidote to crumbling spearheads than any witchdoctor's spell yet devised.

The 11 children of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Russell of Vinton, Ohio, all have middle names formed by spelling their first names backward. "Mother did it but I don't know why," says Laur Rust now Mrs Laur Rust Gee "She would take names from the Bible and other books and compere them until they came out that way." The children's names are Noel Leon, Novel Levon, Norwood Doowron, Nerol Loren, Leron Norel, Noble Elbon, Lledo Lebanna Annabel and Leah Hael.

At Knoxville, Tenn., Lester Taylor, 69, out on beil on charges of selling moonshine whiskey, discovered that government inspectors had overlooked two cases of his merchandise. So, he told a judge, he had a little "going out of business sale"—and got arrested again. The judge placed him on 12 months probation.
